

Presentation Review: MCRENGINE

Positives

I thought you did a good job overall and seemed very relaxed while you presented which conveys confidence. You did a good job of using the figures from the table to ask questions and generate discussion among the audience, which is something I thought I was weak on. Your slides weren't too wordy and were easy to read. I appreciated you having some visualizations to explain the different applications that they used to test their application.

Improvements

If you ask the audience a question and someone answers, make sure you provide some kind of confirmation that the answer given is correct. Sometimes you would just move on and it was unclear if the questions was answered correctly. Also, when giving a presentation there is a balance between "teaching" and generating discussion. I'd suggest maybe talking a little bit more to show your expertise on the subject and teach the material, and slim down the questions a little bit. I think too many questions breaks up the presentation too much and that would make the presentation flow better.
